

RULEBOOK

BASIC GAMEPLAY

REQUIRED TO PLAY

Each player requires:

- A deck consisting of 20 cards with no more than 1 card of the same name
 - o 1 card limit is removed in draft mode
- A 6-sided die to represent each player's soul count (0-6)

TERMINOLOGY

Deck: Your collection of cards.

Hits: The amount of times a player can take damage.

The Grid: The 3x1 space where your creatures are played.

Off-site space: The area where an off-site card may be placed.

START OF THE GAME

When the game begins, each player shuffles their deck and draws 5 cards. Players may do one re-roll of this by shuffling their hand into their deck and drawing 5 new cards. After this, players decide the turn order by rolling the dice representing their soul count, whoever gets the higher number chooses whether to go first or second.

Each player starts with 4 souls and 5 hits.

EACH TURN

At the start of the turn, every player draws a card and gains 1 soul (players do not gain a soul on the first turn). If the player has more than 6 souls, they go down to 6. Players may place 1 creature on the grid per turn, and as many spells as they desire, so long as they pay the cost of the spell. You cannot play a creature and override a creature in your grid. If you do not play a creature, you do not get an extra creature summon next turn; however, you use this creature summon during an opponent's turn if an instant card requires it to be cast. When an off-site is chosen to be played, they are placed in a separate area from the grid. On a player's first turn, creatures can only be played in the center space. Creatures cannot attack on the first turn they are summoned but can block and move.

There is no order to how the player must perform their actions, they may freely choose. For example, a player may choose to attack with a creature, then after this play a spell, then choose another creature to attack.

If at the start of the turn a player cannot draw a card in any way, that player loses.

END OF TURN

A player's turn ends when they say it is over. At the end of a player's turn, if they have more than 5 cards in their hand, they must discard cards from their hand until they have exactly 5 cards.

DISCARDING CARDS

When a card is discarded, unless stated otherwise, it goes to the graveyard pile. Creatures and off-sites are discarded when they perish, and spells are discarded when used. Cards can also be discarded through different special effects on cards.

When your deck is empty, shuffle your graveyard to reset your deck. Once a card is in the exile pile, unless state otherwise it cannot exit that pile.

CREATURES / OFF-SITES

BASIC INFO

Creatures and off-sites all have names, types, stats, and keywords. A card's name is in the box near the top of the card. A card's types are listed next to the category of the card (for example, Creature – God, God would be the card's type). The creature's stats are in the box at the bottom of the card and is read as Strength/Life.

ATTACKING

When a creature attacks, they enter combat with the opposing creature. When 2 creatures engage in combat, both creatures take damage equal to the creature's strength stat. If the opposing creature perishes, you gain 1 soul. Damage taken from combat does not automatically recover. If the opposing space is open, the player either takes 1 hit, or the player's off-site card is attacked. When a creature attacks, tap the creature. The same rules apply for off-site cards; however, they can engage in combat with any creature the opponent controls and cannot attack the player. A creature/off-site cannot attack if tapped.

MOVING

A creature can move to an empty space adjacent to them, or swap places with another creature. When the creature moves to an empty space, they are tapped. When creatures swap places with each other, you may choose which of the two creatures are tapped. Off-site cards cannot be moved. A creature cannot move if tapped.

ABILITIES

Some creature/off-site cards have abilities that require souls to be used. Unless stated otherwise, these abilities can be used as many times as you can afford and can only be used on your turn. A creature can still use its ability while tapped, unless stated otherwise.

SPELLS

NORMAL SPELLS

If a spell has no keywords, they may be played only during your turn.

INSTANT SPELLS

If a spell has the instant keyword, they may be played at any point in time. This can also apply to creature/off-site abilities.

EFFECT SPELLS

An effect spell is equipped to the target and remains there until the card the effect is equipped to perishes. Generally, these spells can only be equipped to creatures/off-sites

PERMANENT SPELLS

Permanent spells remain on the board after they are played, and do not get discarded unless stated otherwise. These are generally passive effects.
